GREEN-GOODS SWINDLERS.

Some of Their Tricks to Catch Suckers. Letters from THE NATIONAL TRIBUNE readers show that the "Green-Goods" swindlers are working the whole country systematically and industriously. One of our readers sends us, in addition to the imitation type-written circular that we printed a few weeks ago, a slip apparently cut from some New York paper. This goes on to tell how some merchant in Boston who received a circular from a greengoods swindler, informed the United States officers, who instructed him to accept the proposition of the "dealer," which he did, went on to New York, according to the directions in the letter, met the dealer, and received a packago from him purporting to contain $100,000 in greenbacks. They have bribed a number of Postmasters-who are now under the watch of the detectives-to assist them in finding dupes, and they have also telegraph operators and messengers in their pay, to help them rob would-be counterfeiters and escape punishment.
